Naples Zoo Observes Independence Day Weekend by offering FREE Admission to Military Personnel

What: In honor of those who serve our country, Caribbean Gardens: The ZOO in Naples is offering FREE admission to all active and retired military personnel all Independence Day weekend long from July 1st – 4th, 2005.

Military personnel will receive free admission to the Zoo by presenting military identification, plus adult and child guests in their party will also receive $2 off regular Zoo admission during the weekend.

Zoos are an American favorite. In fact, more people visit accredited zoos and aquariums each year than attend all professional sporting events combined. And the July 4th weekend is a terrific time for families to visit the only nationally accredited zoo between Tampa and Miami.

Guests can explore the Zoo's blend of historic botanical garden and rare animals, enjoy live animal presentations, and board the Primate Expedition Cruise where they will glide by island inhabited by monkeys, lemurs and apes living in natural habitats. Gates open daily at 9:30 and admission (adults $15.95/ child $9.95) includes all shows and the boat ride.

When: Independence Day Weekend
Friday, July 1 through Monday, July 4
